Concerns from developing countries

ecbi

- Potential harm to environmental integrity and achievement of the PA temperature goal due to unclear guidance
- Maintaining overall balance among encouraging participation, transparency and reducing administrative burdens:
 - Avoid burdensome systems while at the same time ensuring transparency across different reporting requirements
 - Need for a functional international registry,
 - A clear and logical sequencing process – e.g., authorisation, initial report, review, first transfer etc.
- Ensuring that Article 6 cooperative approaches contribute to share of proceeds for adaptation

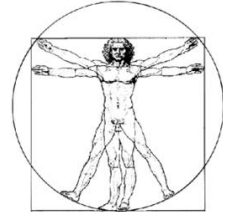

Possible way forward

ecbi

- Identify and engage on political issues early, e.g. interoperability of international registry, first transfer and unilateral cooperative approaches, while allowing technical discussions to move forward.
- Begin consideration of topics can be considered in the A6 review in 2028, e.g. emissions avoidance – to facilitate timely technical and political considerations.

Guiding questions to aid mutual understanding

ecbi

- Which issues are technical and which are political?
- What political leadership can be taken to facilitate resolution of the issues?
